

Dallendyshe Krasnqi explains how volunteering has supported her.....

"I have worked as a volunteer at Curzon Crescent Children's Centre for two years.

I started in 2012 and have had a great experience. At the beginning I felt a bit worried but quickly settled in well with the help of the Children's Centre Staff.

I really enjoy my volunteering work in the crèche and get a lot of joy working with infants, toddlers and children.

Working here has helped me in so many ways and over the two years I have developed new skills and techniques especially on how to communicate effectively with babies and young children.

I have had so much support and help from colleagues and have felt very valued. Especially as in November 2013 I attended volunteer ceremony at the Brent Civic Centre and received an award in recognition for my dedication and commitment to volunteering.

Now I feel ready to take the next step to get into paid employment.

So I recently applied for a position as a Brent casual crèche worker and have been offered an interview, hopefully the outcome will be positive"
